ISUVR 2013 Video Competition

ISUVR is launching the organization's first online video competition for any undergraduate or graduate students in the world. The theme is open to any topic as long as it is in the field of augmented reality and virtual reality or closed to them. We are particularly interesting in this year about "How to enhance the presence using augmented reality or virtual reality?" In other words, "How to enhance the feeling of being somewhere using augmented reality or virtual reality?"

A challenge in the video competition is to create the most effective two-minute video clips addressing the utilization of augmented reality and virtual reality. More specific guidelines are listed below.

- The competition is open to undergraduates or graduate students in the world as an individual or a group.
- About 200 words abstract describing the followings: title, authors, objectives, story, etc. must be submitted through the following online submission system at https://www.easychair.org/account/signin.cgi?conf=isuvr2013. After login the online submission system, choose an option "video competition"
- An actual movie clip must be submitted through YouTube and it must be public to be watched by anyone.
- Multiple submission is allowed per individual or group.
- All submitted materials: abstracts, captions, and narrations on movie clips must be English. An abstract must be in PDF format with embedded fonts.
- The deadline for the abstract the movie clip is by midnight Eastern Time on Monday, 03 June 2013.
- All the submitted movie clips will be judged by ISUVR2013 attendee as well as by the video competition committee during the conference.
- All entries will be listed on the ISUVR 2013 website and remain to be watched after the conference.
- The best three entries will be selected and received a certificate that will be issued by the ISUVR organization. The certificate will be mailed to authors.
- The video competition neither will be included in the proceedings nor will be archived in the IEEE Digital Library.
